

A Trip to the Beach

Wilbur and his family went to the beach.

“Oh dear,” said Dad. “I am unable to find a parking spot! I am unsure about what we can do.”

Wilbur and Mom looked unhappy. It was unclear if they would find a parking spot!

“Look,” said Mom. “Here is a parking spot.”

Dad looked uneasy and said, “I think it would be unwise to park there. It is unlawful to park there. I am unwilling to park there.”

Finally, they found a spot, and they unloaded the car. They walked through all the people sitting on the beach until they came to a spot.

“Wilbur, you unfold the chairs, and I will unwind the umbrella,” said Mom.

Then they unscrewed the thermos and had some lemonade.
