

The Nature Hike

“Let’s go on a nature hike,” said Sandy.

“Great idea,” said Jason. “We can take pictures along the way.”

They hiked into the woods. Sandy looked around and saw a tiny creature with its head peeking out of the hole in the tree.

“Look at that creature,” said Sandy. “Can we capture it? It is so cute.”

Jason took a picture. “No, it is a chipmunk,” he told her.

“We do not want to capture it. It needs to live in the wild.”

They came out of the woods into a pasture. There were some miniature ponies eating grass. “Jason! Take a picture of these ponies!” cried Sandy. She petted one of the ponies. His coat was the texture of silk. “He has such a silky coat! In the future, I am going to have a pony just like this one!”

They went home, and Jason showed Mom the pictures. “You had quite an adventure,” Mom said with a smile. “Next time I want to go with you and see all those creatures!”
